Not illustrated. 1872 Excerpt: . . . clockwork, kept their image immovable on the photographic plate, while the image of the moon, owing to its angular motion being different to that of the sun, continued to advance over the plate. Dr. Curtis, however, has strikingly shown by photographing from an artificial eclipse in which the moon was represented by black paper, notched for the prominences and corona, that this projection of the prominence-images on the disk of the moon is caused by a kind of photographic irradiation on the prepared plate, and is therefore an entirely mechanical action which always occurs where an intensely bright object is in immediate contact with a dark one, and the duration of the action of the light (time of exposure) has exceeded the proper limit. The eclipse of 1868 observed in India, though furnishing so many valuable details concerning the prominences, was almost without results with respect...
